Anna K. Baker

A View of The Odyssey. Curriculum Unit 83.02.02

USA (1983)

TAGS: Odysseus Homer Odyssey Penelope Nausicaa Telemachus

This Project has received funding from the European Research Council (ERC) under the European Union's Horizon 2020 Research and Innovation Programme under grant agreement No 681202, Our Mythical Childhood... The Reception of Classical Antiquity in Children's and Young Adults' Culture in Response to Regional and Global Challenges, ERC Consolidator Grant (2016–2021), led by Prof. Katarzyna Marciniak, Faculty of "Artes Liberales" of the University of Warsaw.

Creators

Anna K. Baker

Anna K. Baker is part of a group of seventy-nine teachers from New Haven, who organised seminars on topics related to curriculum developments between March and August 1983, including one on The seminar entitled "Greek and Roman Mythology", led by William G. Thalmann, Associate Professor of Classics from USC".

This Project has received funding from the European Research Council (ERC) under the European Union's Horizon 2020 Research and Innovation Programme under grant agreement No 681202, Our Mythical Childhood... The Reception of Classical Antiquity in Children's and Young Adults' Culture in Response to Regional and Global Challenges, ERC Consolidator Grant (2016-2021), led by Prof. Katarzyna Marciniak, Faculty of "Artes Liberales" of the University of Warsaw.

Additional information

Contents & Purpose The purpose of this resource is for the teachers to use the epic poem as a tool to help the students in their own self-discovery and path to adulthood. The complexity of the Odyssey is meant to mirror challenges within the students' own lives, as well as making them more familiar with a literary masterpiece. As the creator writes: "Students can be asked to see in the experience of Odysseus, the archetypal traveler, and his son Telemachus, a vision of their own search for identity." The characters of Penelope and Nausicaa will be examined as female counterparts (although they are not travelers).

> The unit offers several themes for discussion, pertaining to the main objective of self-discovery: themes of maturation, initiation, and identity in the Odyssey. The students are encourages to examine the maturation of the young characters of Telemachus and Nausicaa, who grow up in the course of the poem.

> The main activities are a close reading of the Odyssey and in class discussion of the various themes. Additional activities include writing assignments (as part of the students' self-reflection and writing their own lives as an Odyssey), drawings of scenes form the poem, a field trip to Yale Art Gallery

The unit also offers bibliography for teachers and students.

Further comments This resource focuses on the similarities between the ideas expressed in the poem and the students' own world. While the students also learn about the mythological persons and context, the heart of these lessons is to help the students learn how to choose wisely in their own lives, using the myth as a guide. The ultimate purpose of the unit is not just the understanding of an ancient canonical myth, but guiding the students to be better people and learn how to approach challenges wisely in a conflict-ridden environment. Furthermore, via the epic the students are encouraged to search and examine for their own identity and wishes, while moving from childhood to adulthood.

> Odysseus' and Telemachus' different quests in the poem are compared to the students own growing up "odyssey", hence the poem is perceived as a timeless literary piece which is not bound by its ancient setting but can and should guide students in their everyday struggles.

This Project has received funding from the European Research Council (ERC) under the European Union's Horizon 2020 Research and Innovation Programme under grant agreement No 681202, Our Mythical Childhood... The Reception of Classical Antiquity in Children's and Young Adults' Culture in Response to Regional and Global Challenges, ERC Consolidator Grant (2016–2021), led by Prof. Katarzyna Marciniak, Faculty of "Artes Liberales" of the University of Warsaw.

3

This Project has received funding from the European Research Council (ERC) under the European Union's Horizon 2020 Research and Innovation Programme under grant agreement No 681202, Our Mythical Childhood... The Reception of Classical Antiquity in Children's and Young Adults' Culture in Response to Regional and Global Challenges, ERC Consolidator Grant (2016-2021), led by Prof. Katarzyna Marciniak, Faculty of "Artes Liberales" of the University of Warsaw.